The Contemporary Arts Center announces the 2017-18 Season opener from New Orleans-based company Mondo Bizarro, The Way at Midnight.

Directed by Joanna Russo, Mondo's latest work is inspired by contemporary questions of migration and (dis)orientation.

This piece explores confrontations with losing and being lost from the colonial period through the digital age and incorporates theatrical performance, visual installation and live and recorded music.

Performers Hannah Pepper-Cunningham and Nick Slie bring humor and gravitas to their portrayals of seven characters confronting their ancestry and looking towards an uncertain future. Visual artist Miwa Matreyek's animations will be projected onto the surfaces of the warehouse. Composer Peter Bowling's dynamic and original compositions will fill the auditory space.

About the company:

Mondo Bizarro has been creating original, interdisciplinary performances and fostering creative partnerships in local, national and international communities since 2003. Working as an ensemble and developing projects over several years, their art inspires a deeper understanding of what makes us commonly human and individually unique.
